

These Southeast-based designers are headed to High Point. See what's on their radar

Headed to High Point Market? These designers are. We focus on the Southeast region of the U.S. in our April issue and these designers shared what they will be looking for at the upcoming market — as well as where they like to eat. Here's what they shared with us.

What will you be looking for at market?

Kristin Bartone, Bartone Interiors, Chapel Hill, N.C.:

"This market, I will be searching for more eco-friendly, fully sustainable product lines and hand crafted items. Since 80% of a product's carbon footprint comes from its content, we are hoping to partner with vendors that have a robust manufacturing process as well as products containing recycling materials."

And what are your favorite places to eat and drink during market?

Amber Guyton and Kristine Bartone

Kristin Bartone, Bartone Interiors, Chapel Hill, N.C.:

"My number one place for food and drink is Jaipur Living! They have an all vegetarian menu, smoothies, coffee and a great, filling and healthy lunch. I always plan my showroom visit around lunch time!"